HCHB partners with nVoq to improve clinician experience for home health and hospice

Homecare Homebase selects nVoq to be their preferred speech recognition provider

Dallas, TX – July 12, 2021 –Homecare HomebaseSM (HCHB), the nation’s leading software for home-based care, announces a co-marketing partnership with nVoq Incorporated. HCHB is committed to becoming “better together” by encouraging clinicians to use nVoq’s accurate, secure speech-to-text technology in the office, on the go, or in the home when providing care. nVoq’s suite of leading-edge speech recognition solutions includes nVoq.Mobile Voice for the Android tablet, and nVoq.Voice for Windows users.

With increased documentation requirements, clinicians can benefit from an easy-to-use speech-to-text solution that integrates with HCHB’s software, meets HIPAA compliance regulations, and understands the medical vocabulary unique to home health and hospice. nVoq’s speech recognition solutions fulfill these requirements, allowing clinicians to tell the patient’s story easily, efficiently, and accurately through a dictated narrative note.

HCHB, along with nVoq, will partner to educate HCHB customers on how they will benefit from using nVoq’s speech recognition technology which works directly with HCHB’s clinical documentation solution, PointCare. The two technologies work together seamlessly, enabling a caregiver to easily dictate their notes directly into PointCare.

“nVoq’s speech recognition clients have demonstrated tangible and meaningful operational benefits that we believe will be very attractive to our customers,” said Scott Pattillo, Chief Strategy Officer at HCHB. “By using nVoq’s technology with PointCare, caregivers can deliver more timely, higher quality, and accurate documentation — enhancing the caregiving experience, accelerating reimbursement cycles, and enabling a better work-life balance.”

“nVoq has had tremendous success enabling leading agencies within the HCHB customer base” said Debbi Gillotti, Chief Operating Officer at nVoq. “This partnership further aligns our deep collaboration with HCHB to bring nVoq’s industry leading speech recognition to agencies using Homecare Homebase.”
